PANORAMIC JOURNEYS
MONGOLIA

Mongolia: there simply is nowhere quite like it. The birth place of the great Khan is largely the same now as it was then and the country is wonderfully diverse in terms of landscape. The magisterial Western Altai gives way to the fertile central Heartland, whilst the exquisite forested North fades into the endless sea of green steppe to the East. The amazing arid southern Gobi is the fifth distinct eco-region. Still largely undiscovered there is seemingly endless uninhabited wilderness around every mountain and in every valley.

The people of Mongolia are wonderfully adapted to their climate. Temperatures can differ by as much as 80°C between summer and winter. The Mongolian ger is perfectly designed to withstand such extremes as well as being portable to fit the nomadic way of life almost half of the population lead. Such a demanding climate leads the people of Mongolia to exhibit magical hospitality; only here does a traveller receive an unreserved welcome at every turn. No description of Mongolia is complete without reference to the ingrained equine culture present throughout the nation. The almost spiritual relationship between man and horse is captivating to all who visit and it remains central to Mongolian identity.

PANORAMIC JOURNEYS MONGOLIA

Panoramic Journeys was conceived in Mongolia, a country which is synonymous with the panoramic view of rugged mountains, endless forests and vast open steppe. As a business we have grown up in Mongolia: it is our home and always will be. Our drivers and guides are old friends and they too care passionately about the experience we deliver in Mongolia. We work with them to constantly improve and expand what we can achieve as a community in Mongolia at the same time as protecting the places we know and love.
This journey takes you to the high desert steppe of the Tavan Bogd National Park in the Altai Mountains of Western Mongolia. Camel trek onto the Potani Glacier, summiting Malchin, the highest non technical mountain climb in Mongolia before trekking to stay with an eagle hunting family, preparing for the Eagle Festival. You will ride out with the hunter and help him with his final preparations and training of his young eagle before travelling through the for 2 days, alongside the hunter as he travels through valleys and over passes to the Sagsai eagle festival, setting up camp enroute.

The culmination of the trip is the two day eagle festival at Sagsai. The competition is intense and this will be the first time ‘your’ eagle will be competing, so anything could happen! As well as the skills of the hunters with their eagles, you will see displays of the Kazakh’s horsemanship as they race and take part in other horseback games. You will really feel part of the action as you watch the games from horseback, like a true local, cheering on your hosts – a once in a lifetime experience.

Travel Details – 40 mins ULN airport to town
3 Thu 6-Sep  DRIVE TO TAVANBOGD NATIONAL PARK

Drive 180km westwards, for a spectacular drive through high desert mountain landscapes to the Altai Tavan Bogd National Park. Set up camp and meet your horse and camel guides at the trek start point.

Travel Details – 7-8hr drive

4 Fri 7-Sep  TREK OR CAMEL RIDE TO POTANIN GLACIER BASE CAMP

After breakfast, the camels will be loaded and you begin the trek to the base camp (3095m) of the snow-capped Tavan Bogd massif. The hike rises steadily and takes you over lush alpine tundra with views directly across the glacier with the peaks in the distance. This is a good acclimatisation hike for tomorrow. You will find yourself crossing glacial run offs and sometimes it can be very muddy. Set up camp for two nights next to the 20km long Potanin glacier which is the largest and most imposing of the twenty glaciers in Mongolian Altai.

Tavan Bogd means “the Holy Five” referring to the five highest peaks – of which Khuiten Uul (mountain) towers above them all at 4,374m and is the highest mountain in Mongolia. The other four are Nairamdal (4,082m), Burged (4,071m), Ulgii (4,113m), and Malchin (4050m) which you will climb tomorrow. Enjoy time taking in the awe-inspiring landscape and snow capped peaks above.
5  Sat  8-Sep  SUMMIT MOUNT MALCHIN

Today you will climb to the highest altitude reached throughout the entire trek to summit Malchin Peak (4050m) which rises directly from the camp to the Russian border. Start early, as it is a full day’s trekking, there can be sudden weather changes and the altitude will impact on your usual performance. It is a long climb, mostly on unstable scree. Although the terrain is rocky with some loose rocks but it is non-technical and the peak can be summited without any climbing equipment and you will see a wonderful view of all the glaciated peaks of the Alai Tavan Bogd, and Potanin glacier as well as Russia and Kazakhstan to the North and Mount Khuiten to the South.

Camp @ 3095m
Ascent of 955m
Descent of 955m
13km trek; 9-10hrs

6  Sun  9-Sep  CAMEL RIDE TO TSAGAAN GOL VALLEY

Most of the morning will be spent trekking up the valley toward the head of Tsagaan Gol valley. This grassland is where Tuvan people spend their summer and there may be still some families here in early September. Tuvan are shaman, and although rare nowadays, some do still practice in the valleys where the presence of spirits is most strongly felt, in order to help the sick and as part of traditional ceremonies. Here you will meet back with your vehicles.

Camp at approx. 2900m
15km trek; 5hrs
7  Mon 10-Sep  DRIVE TO KHUITAS VALLEY TO MEET YOUR EAGLE HUNTER HOSTS

A beautiful drive today through wide high desert and steppe, across mountain passes and through ancient burial sites to Khuitas valley (5hrs) near the Snake river. Meet Auez and his family, your hosts for the next 3 nights, where you will stay in gers set up next to the family. The facilities are comfortable but basic - the gers are equipped with beds and a stove, but washing facilities will be limited to a bowl of water and the toilet is a hole in the ground.

Travel Details – 5hr drive

8  Tue 11-Sep  EAGLE TRAINING WITH ORAL

Experience first hand Kazakh hospitality and the nomadic lifestyle. Your host’s cousin Oral, is an experienced eagle hunter with a young bird which will compete for the first time this year. He will be happy to talk to you about Kazakh eagle hunting skills and history. Before going to the festival, hunters do some final training with their birds, head up into the mountains to help with the final preparations.

Shared Ger(s)  (B,L,D)
9  Wed 12-Sep  EXPLORING THE REGION OR NOMADIC LIFE

Today will be spent with our Kazakh eagle hunting friends, learning about their way of life. There will be a chance to ride out with Auez who is a horse trainer. It is a beautiful area, with some good day rides. Alternatively, if the group prefers, you could explore some of the lakes, approximately an hours drive away.

Travel Details – TBC

10 Thu 13-Sep  RIDE TO SAGSAI (APPROX. 95KM OVER 2 DAYS) THROUGH THE KHOVD RIVER VALLEY.

There may be a chance to hunt with the eagle on the ride today or tomorrow. There will be a support vehicle carrying tents and other equipment which will meet you in tonight’s camping spot. Anyone who needs to can travel in the support vehicle. Help set up camp and settle down for a hot cooked meal.

Travel Details – 6hrs riding
11 Fri 14-Sep
RIDE TO SAGSAI

Continue your ride to Sagsai, stopping by some deer stones and balbals (Turkic stone man) enroute. Today is the final day that the eagle hunters can train their birds. Travel alongside the hunters as they ride towards the festival ground to practice the hunting. Whilst dragging prey behind them, the hunters will call their eagles for the bird to catch it at pace. Enjoy a picnic lunch and stunning scenery enroute to the festival site and your Festival Camp set up which will be home for the duration of the Golden Eagle Festival. Settle in to your camp which may be shared with other PJ festival guests over these next couple of nights.

Travel Details – 6hrs riding

12 Sat 15-Sep
SAGSAI EAGLE FESTIVAL

If you are keen, you may like to join some of the hunters this morning as they ride, eagles in hand, to the festival.

Day one of the Eagle Festival, a two day festival which shows off the skills of eagle and hunter/trainer. Dressed in full regalia and mounted on groomed and decorated horses, the eagle hunters compete for various awards including 'Best Eagle at Hunting Prey'. Other 'manly' sporting activities you'll watch include horse racing, camel racing, and the highly entertaining 'Bushkashi' - goat skin tug-o-war on horseback.

ULANBAATAR

Ulaanbaatar, meaning 'Red Hero', is the capital city of Mongolia. Situated on the Tuul River, it is a mixture of traditional and modern. The ornate flowing eaves of the monastery temples stand beside communist planned courtyards and modern skyscrapers. UB, as the capital is affectionately known, also has some excellent museums, galleries, theatres, bars and restaurants.

Gandantegchinlen Khiid (Gandan for short) is the largest and most important monastery in Mongolia. The monastery's main attraction is the magnificent white Migjid Janraisig Temple which houses a 25m high, 20 ton gilded statue. It is a working monastery with ceremonies every morning and 150 monks in residence.

Impressive and expansive, Chinggis Khaan Square in the heart of the city, has recently been renamed to honour the nations creator. Originally this square was named 'Sükhbaatar' after the hero of the revolution "Damdin Sükhbaatar", who declared Mongolia’s final independence from the Chinese. His statue takes centre stage in front of the Parliament building and looking south towards Peace Avenue.
ULAANBAATAR

The National History Museum, renovated in 1998, is a comprehensive and well-laid out showcase of key points in Mongolia's history. Journey through key facts and artefacts from the Bronze age, the Mongol Empire of Genghis Khaan, to the communist Russian years and the democratic revolution of the early 1990s. Learn about nomadic pastoralism of the steppes and the different ethnic groups of Mongolia.

Naraan Tuul, or the Black Market, as it is commonly known (although not illegal) - is a giant flea market 4km from the centre of town. It's a great place to enjoy the hustle and bustle of Mongolian traders, pick up some riding boots or material for getting a deel tailor-made.

Cashmere: Mongolia produces about 3,000 tons of cashmere per year, about 21 % of the world market. Many quality cashmere products can be found at low prices. The Gobi company has a store on Peace Avenue and also a factory shop on the outskirts of town. Other central shops include Elite, Goyo - and the State Department Store has a range of cashmere labels all under one roof.
CHINGGIS MONUMENT

This 40 metre tall statue stands on top of the Chinggis Khaan Statue Complex, a visitor centre and museum on the bank of the Tuul River where, according to legend, Great Khan found a gold whip. The statue symbolically points east, towards his birthplace. Visitors are able to walk through the chest and neck of the horse to get a panoramic view of the river.
WESTERN MONGOLIA

The capital of the westernmost aimag, Ulgii is a predominantly Kazakh city that happens to be in Mongolia. Muslim influence is widespread - from street signs, religion, clothes and food, and gives the town its special atmosphere.

Kazakh culture is quite different from Mongolian. They generally adhere rather loosely to Sunni Islam, but religion is not a major force as they are nomads. Kazakh gers are taller, wider and more richly decorated than the Mongolian version.
ULGII

The capital of the westernmost aimag, Ulgii is a predominantly Kazakh city that happens to be in Mongolia. They generally adhere rather loosely to Sunni Islam, but religion is not a major force as they are nomads. Kazakh gers are taller, wider and more richly decorated than the Mongolian version.

The province of Bayan-Ulgii is rich in archaeological remains, as a reminder of the Bronze Ages and the time of the Huns and Turkic invasions.
ALTAI TAVAN BOGD NATIONAL PARK

Covering 6,362 km², this national park in Bayan-Ulgii province, western Mongolia, is home to the highest peak in the country, Mount Khuiten (4,374m).

This incredible region stretches south from Mount Tavan Bogd and includes the idyllic twin lakes of Khoton Nuur and Khurgan Nuur and Dayan Nuur. Each of these freshwater lakes are fed from the Khovd Gol and sit at around 2,000m above sea level.

Despite its remote location, Altai Tavan Bogd National Park is a trekkers paradise and offers an experience unlike any other in Mongolia. In winter, the region can experience extreme temperatures of -40°C but in summer time it offers pleasant temperatures for hiking. It is a stunning landscape of high glaciated snow capped mountains, alpine and sub-alpine forests, large lakes, rivers and streams, mountain grasslands, barren rocky mountain ranges and semi arid desert-type valley.

Treks here will supported by pack animals and these are primarily camping journeys.
GLACIERS IN ALTAI TAVAN BOGD, WESTERN MONGOLIA

The Altai mainly comprises of rocky mountains, but there are also many glaciers along the high ridges. This region offers dramatic and picturesque scenes with eternal snow capped mountains and flowing glaciers.

Potanin Glacier is the largest in the country, reaching 19km long and 2.5km wide. It descends to an elevation of just 2,900m but is still above the tree line therefore the climate can be extreme and the lack of vegetation can give a very barren appearance. The base of the glacier is covered with moraine and here the melting ice water flows down into the Khovd River basin.

The glacier is used by some of the large mammals of Mongolia to cross westwards through the mountain range. Footprints from brown bears as well as snow leopards can often be found.
This is the Spring and Autumn place of Auez and his family. Auez is an amazing horseman and his cousin, Oral recently collected a baby eagle to train her for the 2018 autumn eagle festivals and to hunt in the winter of 2018. He has been a hunter for the last 20 years, but this is his first new bird for 3 years. It’s about 140km from Ulgii / 5 hours drive and only one hour drive from Hoton and Hurgan lakes.
EAGLE HUNTING

Hunting with eagles is a traditional form of falconry found throughout the Eurasian steppe and is practiced by Kazakh and Kyrgyz people. These Turkic people are most famously known for their skillful training with golden eagles, but they have also been known to train goshawks and falcons as well. Dark, rocky mountainous terrain forms the perfect landscape for camouflaged prey, primarily the Corsac and Red Fox and various breeds of hare. Hunting mainly takes place in the winter when the prey can be spotted easier against the snow and pelts are thick for supplying winter clothing for the Kazakh's.
EAGLE FESTIVAL

The Eagle Festival showcases the art of hunting with eagles practiced by the Kazakh inhabitants of this village in Western Mongolia. Dark, rocky mountainous terrain forms the backdrop to the festivities which incorporate an opening ceremony, parade, cultural exhibitions, demonstrations and handcrafts in the centre of town followed by sporting activities and competitions out towards the mountains. Sagsai is the smaller of the two festivals which are held during September and October months.
The Gorkhi-Terelj National Park covers an area of 2,864 square kilometres. The Gorkhi Mountains are covered with thick forests rich in wildlife and there are fascinating rock formations from the Mesozoic era. The sparkling waters of mountain rivers - frozen solid over winter months - are the reason why the locals call this place “the museum of natural wealth".
Accommodation in Mongolia
Hotel Nine is an upscale budget hotel offering good value for such a central location - right next to Sukhbaatar Square and Government House. It is just a short walk from the central post office and the National History Museum.

Facilities include air conditioning, high speed wireless internet, cable TV, restaurant and business area.
GER CAMPS

A ger camp is a ‘countryside hotel’ with each single, couple or family in their own comfortable, stove lit, traditional ger. Ger camps have fixed western style bathroom facilities, and hot showers are available at certain times of the day. There will normally be a restaurant in a separate building and most ger camps can cater for a range of diets. Facilities between camps vary widely and in recent years some ger camps have upgraded with ‘ensuite’ gers whilst others have gone for eco hot steamed towels instead of showers. We try to choose smaller, more personal camps but this will depend on where you are in the country and the time of year you travel.
TENTED CAMPING

A camping adventure in Mongolia is best experienced in the far west in and amongst the foothills of the Altai Mountains. Two man tents will be provided along with a shower tent housing the portable shower as well as a toilet tent offering privacy for the basic hole-in-the-ground facility.

Trekking with wild camping trips are either supported by vehicles or unsupported expeditions using pack animals for all gear which is required throughout the journey.
PJ GER FAMILY STAYS

Through our PJ ger family stays, we work with host families who act as caretakers of our PJ guest gers, meaning that you can stay alongside nomads, giving the opportunity for cultural exchange, whilst having your own space in a private ger with a comfortable bed. You will still experience the nomadic life, sharing meals with the family, and can join in with as much or as little as you like, helping with daily tasks such as milking, collecting fuel and water to heat for a hot shower. Try your hand at fermenting mare’s milk into airag or cooking traditional treats. Or simply relax in a beautiful spot.

Facilities are basic, with a long drop or sit-on eco toilet housed in a tent or outhouse and a camping hand-pump shower tent as well as bowls of hot water for washing.
SUSTAINABLE PROJECTS

Many people want to travel responsibly and sustainably. By making this journey, you are supporting responsible, sustainable tourism in action! Through our PJ ger family stays, we have provided a regular source of income to families in central and eastern Mongolia over the last 9 years. By paying families to be caretakers of our PJ guest gers, travellers can stay alongside nomads, giving the opportunity for cultural exchange, whilst giving both parties their own space! PJ gives families guidance on how to host foreign travellers and support with putting in any extra infrastructure, such as creating a long drop toilet. With support and guidance from PJ, the families learn how to manage the homestay as a supplemental income to their herding. When they are ready to ‘go it alone’ PJ helps them with marketing, online & social media promotion, as well as introductions to other local tour operators. We hope that this can be a small help to families who wish to maintain their way of life as nomads, as opposed to being forced to move to the city to find work, as might be the case after a particularly harsh winter.

We intend to set up more PJ gers in carefully selected locations throughout the country. Our involvement and commitment to the countries we visit is personal and long term and we go out of our way to try and make a positive contribution, investing time and energy in making a small but significant difference to individuals and communities that we have a long term relationship with.
When attending the eagle festivals in western Mongolia, you may be staying in a ‘private PJ camp’ which has been set up specifically for our guests, away from other visitors and with basic facilities. These will at least include traditional Kazakh-style dining tent, shower tent with (limited) hot water for washing and toilet tent housing the camp’s long drop toilet. The location may vary, depending on suitability on specific dates and will be conveniently situated close to the festival site.
VEHICLES

We generally use three types of vehicle in Mongolia: Russian-made Furgons (below); Toyota Landcruisers (right); and Mitsibishi Delicas (bottom right). Each have their own benefits and quirks: Furgons are by far the most practical and roomy which make them perfect for groups; able to ford rivers and navigate sand, they aren’t for the faint-hearted. The air-conditioning is the windows, and the suspension is decidedly robust, so they are not suitable for those with chronic back problems. Depending on group size, we tend to use Furgons on our set departure group trips to reduce the total number of vehicles we need to use and maximise flexibility.
"We have never before travelled with a company that gave such care from start to finish. They took care of every detail and made us feel so special."

Jan and Howard Pettas

"Mongolia is a rare gem with the experts at PJ who gave me an unforgettable experience."

Jenny Jones

"These infinite blue skies and horizon-stretching panoramas will stay with me for a long, long time. And they have been accompanied on so many occasions by singing Mongolians or Kazakhs with wonderful voices - our superbly skilled drivers and unforgettable guides."
